

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A mobile telecommunication device of the type having of an information transmitter/receiver, an information display screen (4), a user control interface and a processor including execution software, which is used to process and execute the numerous functions integrated in the device. The device includes elements for monitoring and analysing information received by the receiver and elements for generating at least one pictogram (40) comprising attributes which can at least be modified under the control of the monitoring and analysis elements, in order to notify a user of the receipt of information. The pictogram (40) can be displayed on the display screen (4) in order to form a man/machine interface. The device also includes activation zones (42, 50) used to activate the device's integrated functions, which can be accessed by the user via the control interface of the device in order to enable activation of the corresponding functions.